Brief biography

Maarten Pieter Schinkel (Ph.D. Universiteit Maastricht, 2001) is Professor of Competition Economics and Regulation at the University of Amsterdam's Department of Economics and Business. He is a research fellow of the Tinbergen Institute and, as one of the founders of the Amsterdam Center for Law & Economics (ACLE), is also a professor of law at the Amsterdam Law School by affiliation. Schinkel's research interests are in industrial organization, competition policy and regulation theory, in particular public and private enforcement.

Dr. Schinkel's recent papers consider structural remedies, price ceilings, green antitrust, algorithmic collusion, banking competition, and cartel dating. His work has been published in leading academic journals as the RAND Journal of Economics, European Economic Review,

Journal of Environmental Economics and Management, Economics Letters, Journal of Industrial Economics, International Journal of Industrial Organization, Journal of Applied Econometrics, Review of Industrial Organization, Antitrust Bulletin, Journal of Mathematical Economics, Journal of Public Administration Research and Theory, History of Political Economy, Journal of Regulatory Economics, Journal of Competition Law and Economics, World Competition and European Competition Law Review. He is (co-)author of several books.

Dr. Schinkel teaches the specialized MSc course Competition Policy in the Amsterdam School of Economics, a lecture series on competition economics in the LLM course EC Competition Law in the Amsterdam Law School, and in the CRESSE Summer School. He is also the principal teacher in Principles of Economics & Business, a course on foundations and classics for all incoming freshmen at UvA Economics and Business. Schinkel previously held positions at the Duisenberg School of Finance (DSF), Maastricht University (The Netherlands), the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (Cambridge MA, USA), and the College of Europe (Bruges, Belgium), and he was an academic affiliate of Charles River Associates (CRA).

Dr. Schinkel's research regularly attracts the attention of popular media and investigative journalism. He occasionally acts as an expert on complex competition litigation matters, mostly for plaintiffs in antitrust damages cases, including in Trucks, Elevators, Sodium Chlorate, Paraffin Wax and Bitumen. Schinkel served in several public functions, including as Non-Governmental Advisor to the European Commission and Deputy Economic Counsel to the Board to the Dutch competition authority (ACM). He won best teacher awards both at Maastricht University (2001) and University of Amsterdam (2018). Schinkel is a DAAD fellow, a NAF fellow, a Fulbright fellow and a member of the Royal Holland Society of Sciences and Humanities (KHMW).
